

SyberWorks Partners with MedSenses to Provide Nursing and Healthcare e-Learning to the Medical and Healthcare Industries through their Hospital Learning Management System

Waltham, Massachusetts – August 7, 2008

SyberWorks, Inc., a leader in custom e-Learning Solutions and the Learning Management System industry, today announces their partnership with MedSenses, Inc., a supplier of e-Learning content to the medical and healthcare industries through the SyberWorks Hospital Learning Management System.

Nicholas Donald, Director of Business Development at MedSenses, Inc., says staffing issues and personnel shortages in hospitals have generated a need for a comprehensive workforce-development program with additional competency-based training.

“The combination of online training content from MedSenses and provided through the SyberWorks Hospital Learning Management system will give hospitals and healthcare organizations a way to efficiently and competently train their staff.”

Dave Boggs, CEO of SyberWorks, states, “SyberWorks has been working steadily to build a network of web-based training-content providers that offer best-of-breed online courseware across various areas of subject-matter expertise. We are excited to partner with MedSenses, Inc. to provide a total e-Learning solution to the medical and healthcare industries, through our Hospital Learning Management System. The addition of MedSenses will help to complete our off-the-shelf content offering in this area.” The courses are listed on the SyberWorks web site at <http://www.syberworks.com/courses.htm#cp0>.
